Dear

Receipt of your telegram is acknowledged.

Rather than set any particular day, which is most difficult for me to do now that Congress is back in session, I would suggest that any day when you are in Washington, you telephone my office and, if at all possible, we will try to make an appointment for the time you are here.

Very sincerely yours,

Dear [Redacted]

Referring to your letter of 14 January 1950, it is regretted that I shall not be able to receive you as it appears quite probable at the moment that I will have to be absent from the city during the period you mention. I would suggest, therefore, that when you come to Washington you call on [Redacted] direct, and, if you will telephone him on your arrival [Redacted] he will be pleased to fix an appointment which will suit your convenience.
